

About the Editor: Tom Robertson is a direct descendant of Dr. Francis Marion Robertson. He is president of Cranston Engineering Group, P.C. of Augusta, Georgia, where he practices civil engineering, city planning, and land surveying, and is an historic preservationist, having restored four landmark buildings in the city. Tom was instrumental in the designation of the Augusta Canal National Heritage Area, and testified before Congressional committees to bring it about. He is the recipient of many awards for waterfront planning and design and community service, and a lifetime achievement award in historic preservation. Tom has published several papers, and is a popular speaker on a wide variety of engineering and historical topics. Resisting Sherman is his first book.

— Also by Savas Beatie —

THE LOST PAPERS OF CONFEDERATE GENERAL JOHN BELL HOOD
by Stephen M. Hood

"No Civil War collection will be complete without this book."
— Winston Groom, author of Forrest Gump and Shrouds of Glory

THE CHICKAMAUGA CAMPAIGN
A Mad Irregular Battle: From the Crossing of the Tennessee River Through the Second Day, August 22–September 19, 1863
by David A. Powell

"A monumental contribution." — Lee White, Park Ranger, Chickamauga & Chattanooga NMP

Selection of the Military and History book clubs

SB

Savas Beatie

P.O. Box 4527, El Dorado Hills, CA 95762
www.savasbeatie.com / E-mail: sales@savasbeatie.com

ISBN 13: 978-1-61121-260-0

Jacket design by www.mousematdesign.com

Cover images: Photograph of Surgeon Francis Marion Robertson courtesy of Waring Historical Library, Medical University of South Carolina. Journal text photograph by Thomas H. Robertson, Jr. from the original diary in his collection.

— Advance Praise —

"Resisting Sherman is Thomas H. Robertson's presentation of the Civil War diary penned by his great-great-grandfather, Dr. Francis Marion Robertson, during a three-month period following the evacuation of Charleston at the end of the war. The detailed entries, which describe the daily ordeals of a Confederate surgeon, are enhanced by the author's in-depth footnotes. The result is an enjoyable read, and one that should be added to every Civil War enthusiast's library."

— William J. Morton, MD, JD, author of The Story of Georgia's Boundaries: A Meeting of History and Geography

"Robertson's diary is an excellent chronicle of the last days of the war in the Carolinas through the eyes of a Confederate surgeon. As Robertson makes his way across South Carolina and into North Carolina in front of William T. Sherman's invading army, he provides vivid insights into the places along his route. His story brings alive the trials of a people trying to cope with everyday life as the Confederacy slowly disintegrated around them. Thomas H. Robertson's skillful editing makes the story come alive. This is a must-read for anyone interested in the social conditions in the Carolinas in early 1865 and the Confederate army's closing battle for independence."

— Anne J. Bailey, PhD, editor of Society of Civil War Historians Newsletter and author of The Chessboard of War: Sherman and Hood in the Autumn of 1864 and War and Ruin: William T. Sherman and the Savannah Campaign

"Coming from the pen of a fascinating American character and written as the Confederacy teetered on the brink of destruction, Francis Marion Robertson's journal provides unique perspective and fresh insight into an often neglected episode of the Civil War. Tom Robertson delivers a wealth of supplemental detail and heretofore unpublished images that make Resisting Sherman more than just a valuable contribution to our historical narrative. Resisting Sherman conveys Dr. Robertson's personal sense of urgency over military, political, and family matters in a poignant account that is eminently readable and satisfying."

— C. L. Bragg, MD, author of Crescent Moon over Carolina: William Moultrie and American Liberty and co-author of Never for Want of Powder: The Confederate Powder Works in Augusta, Georgia

SB

Savas Beatie

P.O. Box 4527, El Dorado Hills, CA 95762

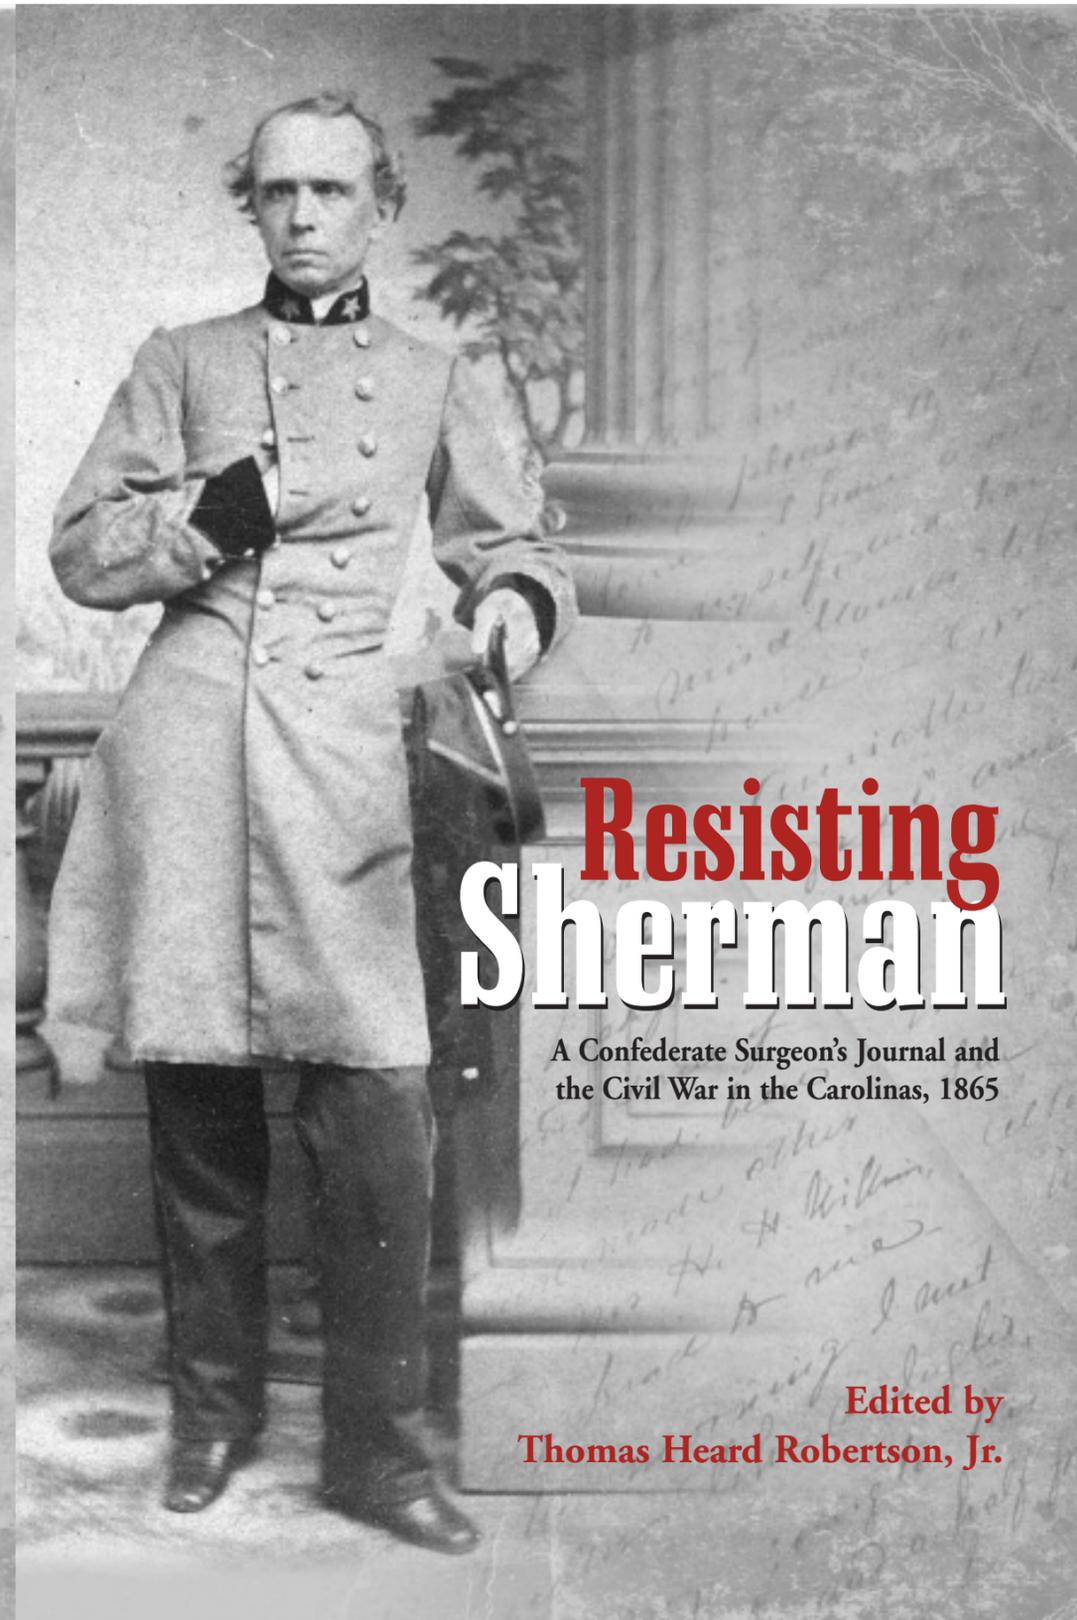

www.savasbeatie.com / E-mail: sales@savasbeatie.com

Resisting Sherman

A Confederate Surgeon's Journal and the Civil War in the Carolinas, 1865

Edited by Thomas Heard Robertson, Jr.

SB

Resisting Sherman

A Confederate Surgeon's Journal and the Civil War in the Carolinas, 1865

Edited by Thomas Heard Robertson, Jr.

$26.95

SURPRISINGLY LITTLE INK has been spilled on the final months of the Civil War in the Carolinas, despite its fascinating cast of characters, host of combats large and small, and its impact on the course of the war. Resisting Sherman: A Confederate Surgeon's Journal and the Civil War in the Carolinas, 1865, by Francis Marion Robertson (edited by Thomas H. Robertson, Jr.) fills in many of the gaps and adds tremendously to our knowledge of this region and those troubled final days of the Confederacy.

Surgeon Francis Robertson fled Charleston with the Confederate garrison in 1865 in an effort to stay ahead of General Sherman's Federal army as it marched north from Savannah. The Southern high command was attempting to assemble General Joseph E. Johnston's force in North Carolina for a last-ditch effort to defeat Sherman and perhaps join with General Lee in Virginia, or at least gain better terms for surrender. Dr. Robertson, a West Pointer, physician, professor, politician, patrician, and Presbyterian, with five sons in the Confederate army, kept a daily journal for the final three months of the Civil War while traveling more than 900 miles through four states. His account looks critically at the decisions of generals from a middle ranking officer's viewpoint, describes army movements from a ground level perspective, and places the military campaign within the everyday events of average citizens suffering under the boot of war.

Editor and descendant Thomas Robertson followed in his ancestor's footsteps, conducting exhaustive research to identify the people, route, and places mentioned in the journal. Sidebars on a wide variety of related issues include coverage of politics and the Battle of Averasboro, where one of the surgeon's sons was shot. An extensive introduction covers the military situation in and around Charleston that led to the evacuation described so vividly by Surgeon Robertson, and an epilogue summarizes what happened to the diary characters after the war. Resisting Sherman is a valuable addition to Civil War literature.